CALLED FIRST TWO DAYS CIRCUIT COURT

Fines and Jail Sentences For Thirteen
Liquor Cases—Prosecutors Urge Maximum Punishment to Enforce Prohibition

COURTROOM CROWDED EACH DAY WITH MANY ONLOOKERS

PINEVILLE, Feb. 28.—Seventy-nine suits have been called by Judge Forrester in the first two days of the criminal term of the circuit court here. Many of these have been continued, usually because of the absence of witnesses, a few have been dismissed, and in thirteen liquor cases fines and jail sentences have been imposed. Judge Anderson of Middleboro and B. B. Golden are handling the cases for the state.

Following are the verdicts given by the petit jury.

Dave North, charged with selling liquor was found guilty, and fined $50 and sentenced to thirty days in jail at hard labor.

J. D. Butler, who was found guilty of drunkenness, was fined $100. Hiram Collins, charged with selling liquor, was fined $50 and thirty days in jail. Charles Roop was fined $250 and given 30 days in jail on a liquor charge. Gillis McGeorge was found guilty of manufacturing liquor, fined $300 and given thirty days in jail. On one charge and on the second charge was fined $200 and another thirty days added. Otha Cole, charged with transporting liquor, was given $200 fine and thirty days in jail. Millard Overton was fined $300 and given 60 days in jail. Ben Price was found guilty on five charges fined $100 each on two charges, $200 on one, and $50 on two and give a total of 210 days in jail.

The court room and lobby of the courthouse has been crowded since the beginning of court, and much interest is being manifested in the decisions handed down in the liquor cases. Often the courtroom is so crowded that the sheriff is forced to make those occupying the standing room only leave the room, the balcony is always filled, and only by threatening to impose fines upon the spectators can they be induced to clear the room.

Judge Forrester and both Judge Anderson and Attorney Golden have prohibition laws and urged conviction for the enforcement of the laws, in the hopes by this means of helping to rid this section of the state from the present prevalence of liquor law violations.

Many witnesses are being called before the grand jury also.

Woman Constable Rids Montana
Town of Its Delinquent Problem

GLASGOW, Mont., Feb. 27.—Not so long ago Glasgow, just like every other town, had the problem of the delinquent young girl, and the high school booze and petting parties and all the other 1923 variations of juvenile delinquency from the "straight and narrow."

Now the whole problem has been solved—

By Mrs. Lucy K. Space, Montana's only woman constable.

Mrs. Space became a constable when the county commissioners appointed her to fill a vacancy for the two remaining months of an unexpired term.

Bootleggers thought she'd get after them. But she didn't. Instead—

"A lot of men whose business made it necessary for them to travel about the state, used to stay in Glasgow every week end," Mrs. Space says.

"They got to parting on wild parties in their hotel rooms and getting young girls of this community to attend."

"I went around and picked up these girls and took them home. There I lectured them roundly. And I put the facts up to their parents."

"There's no more of that kind in Glasgow now. And I believe that the same problem can be dealt with in the same way in every city, large or small throughout the country."

MRS. LUCY K. SPACE

The county commissioners want constable Space to continue her good work. So they've appointed her regular constable now, to serve the full term of two years.

ADVISES TOURISTS AGAINST KY. ROADS

Knoxville Auto Club Believes More Harm Than Good In Deceiving Motorists

KNOXVILLE, Feb. 27.—"Don't go through Kentucky," the advice given motorists bound north, east, south and west, is the answer of the Knoxville Automobile club, of which R. W. Hanlon is secretary, to overtures of the Asheville Motor club respecting a campaign to arouse interest in a "short scenic route" through Knoxville and Asheville to Florida. The local organization has declined to participate in a motorcade of between 20 and 30 machines over the route it is desired to popularize.

The attitude here is that while tourists are welcome, it is unfair to deceive them. Indeed, advertising that is not based on the truth is without value, and very likely will be harmful. The Knoxville club prefers to wait until the roads, particularly in Kentucky are improved, meantime advising members and visitors to go and return on highways through other states.

When a letter was received from N. Buckner, managing secretary of the Asheville association, this morning, tourists were in the club offices here explaining the difficulties and dangers of the Kentucky roads. There is a stretch of 16 miles between Corbin and Pineville that is almost impassable. A motorist who passed there paid $126 towing charges to get through.

Motorists coming from the south and bound for Cincinnati, are advised to turn their machines towards Washington. This route is several hundred miles longer but it is said, it can be followed more quickly than the "short scenic route."

By Associated Press
DIXON, Ky., Feb. 28.—Failing to hold up his hands when so ordered by masked highwaymen, Archie Sampson, 25, was shot and killed at Blackford near here last night, according to a story told Webster county authorities by three young men who were with the slain man. Efforts to trace the alleged highwayman are without results. Witnesses said they were seated at the Illinois Central pumping station near Blackford when the bandit appeared, all members of the party except Simpson held up their hands at the command. When the bandit had shot Simpson through the heart he fled.

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Convinced that half a dozen aspirants were already making cautious overtures to test their strength as Republican presidential possibilities for 1924, some friends of President Harding have begun work to assure him the renomination. Thus far the movement has not received the proportions of a closely knit organization but it has progressed to where it promises to make itself felt in many states before summer. A little later friends predict Harding will make a speechmaking trip which will carry him to the Pacific Coast. The view here is all this means is the Republicans' campaign will be in full swing almost a year before the nomination convention.

He has ordered a ten by twelve tent from the army salvage store here and "be it ever so humble" it will be his home and there will be no place like it.

As evidence of the fact that it will be no temporary camp but a permanent home, this enemy of the landlord and the building profiteer intends to install three beds, a cook stove and various other articles of furniture used by a large family in his novel abode. Though spring does not officially open until March 21 and often does not really open until a later date, the aforesaid gentleman will erect his canvas home as soon as it arrives and establish his abode therein.

WANTS NO HANDICAPS, PUT

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Postmaster General Work has recommended to President Harding today that the selection of postmasters should no longer be considered political, perquisite of senators and representatives, but should be vested in the postoffice department alone. At the same time he recommended that the present regulation for examination of candidates for postmaster be abandoned. He said the postoffice department was strictly a business organization and it ought to be aided in putting the right man in the right place and not to be handicapped by political considerations or restrictions entailed by present examination plans.

Outlining some of his ideas about postmasterships, Work said he would appoint postmaster subject to removal for inefficiency or moral delinquency, consult local business organizations in the selection or remove residence requirements so that the postmaster for the central accounting offices, branches of the postoffice department could be filled by promotion or merit.

BACK TOMORROW

Woman Indicted in Connection Corbin Dynamiting Returns to Face Grave Charges

Mrs. Dudley McJelton, indicted by the Whitley circuit court in connection with the dynamiting of a rooming house in Corbin last month, is expected to arrive in Corbin tomorrow. State officers went to San Bernardino Cal., where Mrs. McJelton went after the dynamiting, and they are bringing her back.

The Meadows boarding house in Corbin was wrecked January 20, apparently by a blast of dynamite placed in a bath room. Fifteen men were sleeping in the house and were hurled through the walls or buried in the debris of the wreck. Only two, however, received injuries more than a few bruises and scratches. These were M. M. Ellis of Sevierville, Tenn., and P. B. Kelener of Pulaski, Tenn. All of the men in the house were non-union employees of the L. & N. railroad.

The fact that Mrs. McJelton had been a strong union sympathizer during the strike at Corbin and that she had been a roomer in the Meadows house, also left town hurriedly on the night of the explosion caused suspicion to be directed toward her. A reward of about $8,000 for the arrest and conviction of the person who set off this dynamite blast has given more than ordinary impetus to the search for the guilty person.

A THOUGHT

Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? For thou dost not enquire wisely concerning this.—Ecc. 7:10.

Man hath a weary pilgrimage,
As through the world he wends;
On every stage, from youth to age,
Still discontent attends;
With heaviness he casts his eye
Upon the road before,
And still remembers with a sigh,
The days that are no more.
—Robert Southey.

INCOME TAX FRAUDS

The internal revenue officials have had a good deal of experience with these tax evaders in the past and some of them have been brought to account. Some are still at large. An installment of income tax payments is due next month, and the chronic offenders are expected to repeat their offenses of the past. But a good deal of quiet investigation has been going on during the last twelve months, and agents of the government are prepared, they say, to spring a few surprises in the event that new frauds against the Federal law are perpetrated.

Income tax evaders are men occupying respectable positions in society. They either draw good salaries or have comfortable incomes from their business. They belong to the intelligent class. There is no reason why they should seek to defraud the Government out of the pittance which is required by law. Yet, it is done year in and year out, not with any qualms of conscience, but with a sly smirk at being able to "put it over." But the longest lane has its turn. This may prove a disastrous year for those who seek to evade this lawful duty. The old adage, "It is better to be safe than sorry," is particularly pertinent at this time.

FAVOR PARK AT CUMBERLAND GAP

Introduction in Congress of a bill for a Federal reservation in the vicinity of Cumberland Gap, where Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia converge, to be known as Lincoln National Park, means possible realization of a long-cherished dream. For many years the idea has been broached.

The site of the reservation which contemplates a tract of 17,000 acres of mostly virgin forest, is not surpassed for natural scenic beauty anywhere in the country. Encroachments of coal and timber development in that section eventually may obliterate the picturesque area unless it is taken over by the national government and preserved as a park. Unless this is done the probabilities are that with the steady progress of the development of the natural resources that abound in the section, this wonderful scenic spot will go the way of others that stood in the way of gold and calculating business.

Government red tape is proverbial but this should spur the efforts of the promoters to greater action looking to the ultimate saving of a natural beauty spot. How such projects may be allowed to lag is shown in the case of Mammoth Cave. Six years ago a bill was offered in Congress to take over the natural wonder and make it a Federal reservation but nothing has been done toward making the world-renowned cavern a national asset. Pushing these projects would seem to be the duty of Kentucky.—The Courier-Journal.

"The Backbone of Our Country"

The following verses, composed by Theo Neal of Balkan, have been sent to the Daily News, and we are reprinting them, firm in our personal opinion that no road commissioner could deny their appeal:

It winds around in a very pretty way,
Tis a pike road, the boys all say.
Its back is hard and smooth as a plank,
And when you drive over it, you never have to crank.

She runs so easy, when you are going in high,
You can see everything as you pass by.
When you have finished your trip and are coming back.

Just think of the times you had to ride "Old Jack."

They have surveyed another line, as we all know and say
Every body is eager to see it coming on this way.

Though they crossed the hill down at Flat Shoals,
Why they did this, no one knows.

We don't want the road to go that way
But would rather partly give them a right of way.

Some of our farmers are cranky in their way,
Though without this good road they can't haul their hay.

If it goes across tanyard hill,
We are going to raise a little patch of it.

You can't imagine it missing Tejay,
I guess,
And if it does, we will be in a devil of a mess.

The people on Brownie's Creek,
Are very quiet and never squeak,
Though they are about one thousand in number.

If they don't get a road, they are going to raise thunder.

Any body knows in a hundred years,
The people will be shedding tears,
If she don't come by Miracle and Tejay,
Because it didn't come this beautiful way.

The difference in the distance is very small
And I am not going to tell you all.
Hope you understand what I am driving at.
If you don't please take off your hat.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

Now that the Twins were past the very mountain and over the wide river they went on toward Jack Straw's domino house again.

It was so near now that they could see the double five where the door was.

But their adventure was not to be ended so soon for other things were to happen.

The first was a man on stilts, eating his lunch out of a bird's nest.

"Hello there!" he called down. "Who are you?"

"Nancy and Nick!" said Nick politely.

"Well, I declare!" said the man. "And where are you going?"

"To Jack Straw's house to put him out!" said Nancy. "He's mixed up everything in Mix-Up Land and put out King Even-Steven. We're going to put him out."

"Why, he's out now," said the man. "I just saw him."

"Then we'll fix it so he can't get in again," said Nick. "We'll knock down his domino house and he won't have any place to live."

"Good day sir."

"Excuse me!" said the man, taking a large bite out of a ham-sandwich. "I just found a fine ham-sandwich tree and I can't think 'till I've eaten something. There! One bite gone. That's one thought! Two bites gone! That's two thoughts! Three bites gone! Now I've got an idea. I'll come right down."

So he hopped off his stilts.

"By the way, what's in your basket?"

"Eggs," said Nancy.

"Ham and eggs! Fine!" cried the man. "Together we should make our fortunes. Now here is my idea. Dare Jack Straw to put his ring on his right thumb. He doesn't know it, but if he does so, everything will be set to rights again and Mix-Up Land will become Apple-Pie Land and King Even-Steven will be king."

"How do you know," asked Nancy.

"I heard the wizard who made it tell the witch who stole it, who told the magician who repaired it, who—"

"I guess we can wait to hear the rest," said Nancy politely.

"Good day sir."

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

OUT OF FASHION

By Berton Braley

The women don't faint any more.
They seldom go flop on the floor,
They're tougher, more agile
Than all of those fragile

And delicate damsels whom Thackeray told about—
Sighing and weeping in anguish complete;
Girls of today, whom the dowagers scold about,
Smile at their troubles—and stay on their feet!

The women don't faint any more.
A fact which I cannot deplore.
Their waists aren't constricted
And they're not afflicted

With vapors and other such feminine maladies,
Due to tight lacing and lack of good air.
Nowadays any young lady who's pal-id is Told to eat beefsteak and other such fare.

The women don't faint any more.
It wouldn't get by, as of yore.
The fainting and sighing
Would prove very trying

And presently lead to some nerve sanitarium,
For fainting went out when the rag-time began,
And nowadays women, when luck seems to harry 'em,
Bear all their sorrows and woes like a man.

We would hate to be a great man and get laughed at just because we didn't keep on being great.

Some people find it hard to go to sleep even though they have been practicing for years and years.

Dr. Hurty of Indianapolis says the world will be crazy in 2123, showing he doesn't expect any change.

The Fear of Truth

"And Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man," Mark 6:20.

Read Mark 6:14-20.

"There are errors which are as fierce as wolves and as pitiless as hyenas; they tear faith and hope and love to pieces."

MEDITATION: To invest a life whether by long years of toil, or by one supreme sacrifice, to truth and righteousness, is to build that life into the enduring structure of the Kingdom. May we not count the hazards for truth, but rather the opportunities.

HYMN:
Fear not, I am with thee. O be not dismayed;
For I am thy God, I will still give thee aid;
I'll strengthen thee, help thee, and cause thee to stand,
Upheld by my righteous, omnipotent hand.

PRAYER: O Lord, support us all the day long of this troublous life, until the shadows lengthen, and the evening comes, and the busy world is hushed, and the fever of life is over, and our work is done. Then of thy great mercy grant us a safe lodging, and a holy rest, and peace at the last; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling

Out on the open road, with the little, Chinese laundry and its splash of color far behind, the fact of Alice's death seemed to take on more significance.

Kate felt that there had been a period put to something in her own life by the passage of the blond girl. Surely the last thing that had attached her to the old life was gone. She must accept the doubt of Dan, which Alice had aroused passively now. There was no other way.

And what of Latham? She looked at the man beside her. His eyes were on the road. His clear-cut features stood out against the moonlight. Kate felt their appeal. Just a few hours before he had quarreled with her, accused her, been unkind to her.

And now, with no explanations, she found herself picking out his good points, seeing his attractiveness.

Suddenly he turned to her. "Dorothy is still at your home?" he asked.

Kate temporarily had forgotten the child. She was startled. "Yes," it was scarcely audible. "I hadn't thought of her. Should she be taken in to see her mother—or is that too hard a thing for a child?" she asked.

Latham was silent for a space. Then: "What do you intend to do with her eventually?" he asked.

"I haven't considered that far—there may be court action. I don't know."

"Then I have a plan," Latham replied. "You have a plan for Dorothy?"

"Yes, dear," his hand sought hers. "But it is a plan, Lady Fair, which begins and ends with the thing I told you over and over and over." Kate loved the light tenderness of his voice.

"That—you love me?" she asked gently.

"Yes, and are you ready to give me an answer now?" It seemed to Kate that no voice had ever been more terder; that no voice ever could make more of an emotional appeal than did James Latham's just then. "Oh—Jimmy—Jimmy—"

His hand tightened over Kate's as she spoke. She felt suddenly very young, very immature. She wanted very much to shift everything to his shoulders, to let him take the entire responsibility for her future. Truly to let him think for her.

"You do love me Kate—It can't be otherwise." His voice was vibrant.

Why couldn't she answer? Why couldn't she find the words? Kate wondered at her own muteness! Of course, she cared for James Latham. Every little nuance of his voice thrilled her. She loved the boyishness of his profile, the eternal youth of his eyes. Then why couldn't she say the one little word that would put her whole future at peace?

TODAY'S RECIPES

EGGS, FLORENTINE

By Bertha E. Shapleigh

Wash two quarts of spinach and cook about 30 minutes, or until soft, adding a fourth of a cup of water and as much baking powder as can be taken on the point of a knife. When cooked, drain thoroughly, pressing out all the water, which should be saved to make a cream soup for another meal. Then chop the spinach, adding butter, salt and pepper to taste.

Make a cream sauce by melting three tablespoons of butter and adding three tablespoons of flour, half a teaspoon of salt, a little pepper and a cup and a half of milk or a cup of milk and half a cup of cream, stirring constantly until it boils.

Place the spinach on a platter or in a baking dish which can be sent to the table, drop six eggs on it, seasoning each with salt and pepper, pour the cream sauce over all and on the top sprinkle evenly a cup of grated cheese.

Set in a hot oven and bake until the eggs are firm and the cheese is melted and slightly browned. Serve at once.

THE NEWS FROM PINEVILLE

PINEVILLE, Feb. 28.—Elisha Bond Jr., William Spinkles and William Duff, all of Knox county, were given preliminary hearing before Judge Rollins Tuesday on the charge of manufacturing liquor. They all pleaded guilty and executed $500 bond for appearance in the London court. They were arrested January 22 by W. H. Green, prohibition agent.

The fact that the still was located on Disappointment Creek may have something to do with their arrest.

TWO DIVORCE PETITIONS FILED IN CIRCUIT COURT

PINEVILLE, Feb. 28.—Two divorce petitions were filed Tuesday with R. E. Wilson, circuit clerk. Mattie Muncey asks her divorce from Rennie Muncey on the charge of cruelty. She also asks $2,000 in a lump sum and $50 monthly for the support of herself and five children.

Inez Cheek filed a petition against Byrd Cheek, also alleging cruelty. She states that they were married May 21, 1921 and separated December 1922.

NATIONAL NEGRO HEALTH WEEK IS APRIL 1 TO 7

During National Negro Health Week, which this year will be celebrated from April 1 to 7, all organizations and persons interested and active in the work will be specially urged to endeavor to get in touch with the vast majority of negroes who have not yet learned of the health work done and the great benefits brought about to self, home, and community by the community gatherings of the week.

During the week the steady decrease in the Negro death rate discussed last year will again be emphasized. Statistics show that in Maryland and North Carolina, the only two southern states in which the records go back for ten years, the negro death rate decreased 78 and 22.5 per cent respectively; and that in Kentucky and Virginia, in which the records go back for only 5 years, the rate decreased 11.5 and 11.1 per cent respectively. In other southern states these records do not go back as much as five years.

These figures seem to indicate that American Negroes are not necessarily short lived nor especially liable to disease and that their death rate is largely due to their comparative poverty. The point is made that better hygienic conditions would reduce the rate of both sickness and death and do away with much of the industrial loss caused to employ by absenteeism.

Loss of High Knob Park Is Blamed On Robsion

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Prospects for the establishment of a national park around High Knob Mountain, Wise county, Virginia, as provided in a bill introduced in Congress last year by Representative C. The Government does not Guarantee the Railroads any earnings

In line with its policy of acquainting readers of this newspaper with the problems of railroad management and operation, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad takes this means of disabusing the public mind of an erroneous impression which seems to have gained wide credence.

The Government of the United States affixed a valuation on all American railroad properties as $18,900,000,000, and by an Act of Congress permitted the owners of the railroads to earn net revenues not exceeding 6% on their investment, as affixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

This action was taken when the roads were returned, after the period of Government direction, to their owners, and it is an interesting fact that latest available figures (for the first 10 months of 1922) show that the Class-1 railroads of America have earned an average of but 4.02%.

There seems to be an attempt on the part of certain newspaper writers and politicians to create the idea in the public mind that the Government is guaranteeing railroads a net return of 6%. Such is not the case. The Government guarantees the railroads nothing; and the return to the hundreds of thousands of individual investors,—widows, orphans, children, and custodians of public funds,—must be earned by railroads or these dividends will not be forthcoming.

Be fair in your consideration of railroad problems and have the facts before you. Complete and detailed information about any subject concerning railroad operation will be sent free, on request addressed to the Bureau of Railway Economics, Washington, D. C.

THE OLD RELIABLE

tion just as things seemed to be working out nicely for Mr. Stemp's projected Appalachian National Park. The proposal of the Virginia congressman was for the Federal government to accept a donation of 5,000 acres of land on and around High Knob and maintain it as a national park under the Department of the Interior. The bill authorizing this project was introduced about a year ago by Mr. Stemp. The approval of the Interior Department was obtained and finally a hearing before the committee set for last Thursday.

Several delegations of citizens from Southwest Virginia were on hand to inform the committee of the farvelous attractions and innumeral beauties of the region. The Committee appeared to be in a receptive mood, and things were progressing nicely.

But just as the spokesman for the Appalachian project were settling back with complacent smiles, and were already imagining their highways thronged with an endless stream of tourists come to enjoy the delights of the Federal fairyland—their visions were rudely interrupted.

The Kentuckian arose. Asking that he be heard on the proposal under consideration, he took the floor and addressed the committee. Starting gently, he gradually warmed up to his subject, and soon held all listeners spellbound as he described in glowing colors another paradise on earth—which was not only in Virginia, but in his own bluegrass state.

Mr. Robsion was ruled out of order by the chair for discussing another measure than the one under consideration, but the damage was done. He succeeded in getting a hearing for his own bill, introduced the day before, that afternoon, and at the end of the day the members of the committee were forced to admit that the thing was beyond them.

Surely there could not be on earth two garden spots as they had described to them that day; so at a loss what course to pursue, they finally have decided that rather than make a mistake by accepting the wrong proposal, they will avoid all risk, and accept neither.—Crawford's Weekly.

WOMANLY TROUBLES

'Twas Hard for Her to Stop Work, But This Texas Lady Says She Had to Go to Bed.—Helped by Cardui.

Salado, Texas.—"I suffered a great deal with womanly troubles," says Miss Ira Lillian Hart, of Route 1, this place. "I would, for a day or two, feel drowsy, stupid and listless; didn't feel like doing my work."

"I would suffer pains in my sides and back, and very severe headaches. "I am the housekeeper, and it was very hard for me to stop, but I would get in such a misery I would have to go to bed. I heard of Cardui, and that it was good for this suffering. The very first bottle I took seemed to help me. I did not suffer near so much, so I sent for the second. It did so much good for me, I can't say enough for Cardui, for it certainly was a friend in need."

Women who feel the need of something to help relieve, or prevent, such troubles, should profit by the experience of thousands of other women, and try this mild, harmless tonic.

"Better See if the Motor Needs Oil"

Get in the habit of saying this to your dealer whenever you stop for gasoline, water or air. Remember, that the only way you can tell whether or not your motor needs oil is; first, by the simple way of looking at the guage, and second, by the expensive way of finding out too late that cylinders have been scored and bearings burned thru your forgetting to keep up the supply of oil.

Sufficient quantity, the right quality, the proper weight or grade of oil, and the replacing of oil after it has been worn out by six or seven hundred miles of running—these are the important things to watch; and, given proper attention, you can avoid the bother and expense of most motor troubles.
